Hay is used in both singular and plural to express "there is " or "there are" it's used extensively.

- Noun with indefinite article
    - Hay un libro. (There is a book)
- Before Numbers
    - Hay tres libros (There are three books)
- Before indefinite pronouns
    - Hay algunos libros (There are some books)

Hay also used in questions where it translates as is there? or are there?

- ¿Dónde hay libros? (Where are there books?)

Hay + que = one must   Hay que + infinitive is used to express the idea of "one must do something" or, "it is necessary to do something." It is a more general expression and since there is no subject, the verb form hay is always used.

Hay que decírselo a María.   One must say it to Maria

Exercises:

1. _____ mucha gente en la calle.

2. Pedro _____ mi mejor amigo.

3. Mis padres no _____ en la casa.

4. (Yo) _____ muy triste.

5. _____ hablar sobre ese tema.

6. ¿ _____ algo en la tele?

7. ¿ Vosotras _____ hermanas?

8. Carla _____ enferma.

9. ¿Por qué no _____ un asiento libre?